

I'm A Quadrillionaire by Xiruo Huang chapter 306

Jon was deeply confused when he ended the call.

He had no idea what the Chasezes were planning to do.

He was still confused up to this point, but according to his previous and current senior officer, they were most likely screwed.

In the face of a first-rated aristocratic family like the Chasezes, they had no chance to fight back at all. In fact, the Chasezes did not even tell them the reason why they were doing this.

Hank?

That was Joseph's oldest grandson.

He should still be rather young.

Jon wondered if this was because his daughter Celia had offended the other.

Thus, He decided to go home and ask her about this.

Jon immediately took a train home.

When he reached home, he saw his wife Mindy sitting on the sofa with a dark expression on her face.

"What's wrong?" Jon asked as he sat beside Mindy.

"They took the products off the shelf and claimed that it was because they failed the tests. They said we have to destroy them immediately and aren't even willing to let me run tests on them again! I even asked about a few other suppliers' products but no one else's had their goods taken off the shelf! They're only targeting us without any regard for the law!" Mindy vented.

"Calm down, calm down! It's just a bit of money, it's okay," Jon consoled.

"This isn't about the money! Oh, did you manage to find out what's happening from them?"

"Kind of, but you need to be prepared for what I'm about to tell you."

"Tell me!"

"Someone is indeed targeting us, and they're very powerful. We can't afford to make an enemy out of these people."

"Who is it? Why are they targeting us? What did we do to offend them?"

"It's Capital City's Chasez family. As to what we must've done, I have no idea. Sir said he'd help me ask tomorrow."

"The Chasez family? That's impossible! We didn't do anything to them at all!" Mindy exclaimed in shock.

The Chasez family had a huge influence in both the commercial and judicial industries.

The Young family was far too weak to fight against the Chasez.

They were screwed, for real this time.

"I don't know enough to answer that, so let's just rest first. We'll find out more tomorrow," Jon said.

"You can sleep first. I don't think I can fall asleep with this problem at hand," Mindy said worriedly.

"Sitting here all night isn't going to change anything. Go to sleep, only then will we have the energy to deal with everything."

"Jon! Why do you think the Chasez family is targeting us? We don't even know them, let alone have any common circles. Why are they doing this to us?"

Jon gave it some thought before he told Mindy his suspicions.

"The master of the Chasez family, Joseph, has a grandson called Hank. Despite being the oldest grandson, he's around Celia's age so I was wondering if she had accidentally offended him or something."

"Then we should go and ask Celia right now! Maybe she knows this Hank Chasez or something!" Mindy said as she got up from the sofa to go upstairs.

Only for Jon to hold her back.

"We can ask her again tomorrow. Celia's already asleep, so just leave her for now. Plus, this is just my suspicion, I could be wrong."

Mindy thought about it and sat back down.

"Alright, then. We'll ask her tomorrow."

The two of them leaned against each other on the sofa and waited for morning to come.

"Darling, what are we going to do if we lose everything?" Mindy asked, lying against Jon.

"So what? If that happens, then we'll find a rural place and build a simple house and live a simple life. Or we could go back to Shu City with David."

"Do you think the Chasezes will leave the three of us alone?"

"Don't worry. As long as we don't ask for anything, they wouldn't dare to do anything against us," Jon replied.

After living so long in Capital City, Jon had the confidence to make such a statement. The Chasez family may be powerful, but they were not the law. There were also much more powerful families than the Chasezes in Capital City.